

Department of Know

published by Counselwell

Two weeks ago I learned that writing newsletters is actually kind of fun. Thanks to all of you who provided positive feedback - I really appreciate it!

For this second issue of Department of Know, I've added a section of articles that have nothing to do with law or the legal industry but I thought were interesting enough to warrant inclusion.

Hope you enjoy!

-Avi

Substantive

- We're not out of the woods yet. Here are some tips for managing monkeypox risks in the workplace (BLG)
- How Canada's new Consumer Privacy Protection Act \(Bill C-27\) may impact federally regulated employees (Compliance Works)
- Alberta Court finds that directors may be personally liable for employee severance (BLG)
- This meme-free analysis of the legal arguments in Twitter v. Elon Musk (Torys)
- The public markets haven't been too kind lately. Check out these key considerations for going private transactions in Canada (McMillan)

Industry

- Formerly operating behind the scenes, we're seeing a growing trend of outspoken and entrepreneurial CLOs who are taking public positions on behalf of their companies (Legal Dive)
- Apparently doing the bare minimum, or 'quiet quitting' as it's now called, is making its way into the legal profession (Lawyers Weekly)

- Brain chip implants could make lawyers better, faster, and cheaper (and maybe even cooler at dinner parties?) (The Times)
- The GC of Medigold Health (UK) discusses his experience with dyslexia and neurodiversity in the workplace on this podcast (Crafty Counsel)

Best Practices

- You may think networking is pointless as an in-house lawyer, but here are 3 counter-points (Above the Law)
- These tips for writing a GC resume (Above the Law)

I Found Interesting

- This essay that makes the case for blurring the lines between work and vacation (The New York Times)
- This article that encourages high-achieving folks to embrace doing absolutely nothing (and actually enjoy it, too) (The Atlantic)

Big Moves

- Big moves at Interac:
 - Libby Nixon joins as Legal Counsel
 - Conni Gibson joins as CLO and Corporate Secretary
- Maleeha Akhtar joins Manulife as Legal Counsel
- Michael Viner joins Wonderbrands Canada as GC
- Robert Corbeil joins Centerra Gold Inc. as AGC
- Rose Sharifi joins Sheridan College as AGC
- Maria Valente-Fernandes is promoted to AGC, Employment at Lightspeed Commerce
- Robert Khazam is promoted to GC of Vive Crop Corporation
